Al Novotny
by Homer Circle, Angling Editor, "Sports Afield"

Over the years, the Lund boat folks have taken time to ask people who depend on boats for a living — fishing and wilderness guides, and boating and fishing writers like me — to honestly subject their boats to the most rugged usage each encounters in pursuit of outdoor professions. And they earnestly listen to suggestions that come back.

This results in Lund boats that aren't a designer's dream of flashy colors or electronic gadgetry. Instead, I find boats with the heart and guts to deliver maintenance-free performance under more duress than the average angler would give it in a lifetime.

But, I wanted to see for myself, so I visited the Lund plant. It is reassuring to see hulls formed of flat aluminum sheets with double-riveted construction and only one weld in the entire hull. The rivets allow for flex and give, as the technician explained, and take endless pounding without breakdown.

Yep, a good fishing boat becomes a part of an angler's life. You think with it, mature with it, relive the memories it helps make, use it to break in young fishermen... and it's ready to be passed on to a son or grandson to extend its benefits.

It's all possible with a Lund!

Weather: Clear, Choppy

Comments: "This boat comes with just about everything but built-in fish. Lots of room and easy going. Lots of storage and heaps of stamina with that Lund-built hull."

A: Stern casting platform with adjustable hydraulic seat, easily removable Kind of like fishing from your favorite chair in your den. Except you get there faster. You’ll love these swivel seats, flat floor, and plenty of locker storage for gear: A big typically rugged Lund.
A whale of a fishing boat. Built to tackle big water or take a gang along in swivel-chair comfort, day or night.

Extra room, Lots of storage. If you hanker for the good things in life — and you fish — here's your boat.

Comments: “Nice beamy workhorses. Good one-man boats or bring friends. Lund integrates the seats with the hull for extra strength. They don’t spare the rivets (and spoil the boat).”
